Mark your move below, then email this page to my@dailyscribe.ca — Daily Scribe reads your handwriting and advances the campaign.

The Ravine Ledge

A ledge overlooks a citadel sunk deep into the earth. A sturdy rope, knotted at intervals, is tied to a leaning pillar and drops into the dark below.

Exits: Down — tick one on the next page to move.

Encounter

The room is clear.

Your Move

Check only one of Attack / Sneak / Flee / Dodge each turn — if you mark more than one, only the highest-priority action (Sneak, then Flee, then Dodge, then Attack) is applied, and I'll say so next time. Roll physically and write your totals below. To Hit: roll a d20 and add your To Hit bonus (see your sheet below) — write the total, and it's a hit if it meets or beats the monster's AC (previous page). Damage on a hit: roll your weapon's die and add your Damage bonus. Stealth to sneak past: roll a d20 and add your Stealth bonus, comparing to the monster's Perception (previous page). Perception (DC 12) to search a room: roll a d20 and add your Perception bonus. Heal (drink a potion): flat 2d4+2, no bonus added. Only one monster is fought at a time, in room order.

- [ ] Attack
- [ ] Sneak / Stealth past
- [ ] Flee / Retreat
- [ ] Dodge
- [ ] Drink Potion
- [ ] Search Room

- [ ] Misread last move — try again

Take an exit (tick one). While enemies remain you can only leave with a successful Sneak or by Fleeing.
